

Perth Airport

Perth Airport is located only 12 km from the city centre. It is the international and regional gateway to Western Australia. The airport has two separate terminals for International and Domestic flights.

Perth airport offers a range of services and amenities for visitors including an extensive range of duty-free shops, restaurants, cafes and bars. Foreign Exchange and ATMs are located on the ground floor and first floor of the international terminal. The ground floor of the international terminal also contains a self help information centre including accommodation information.

If you want to check your email before or after your flight, use our internet access machines located on the ground floor, first floor and departure lounge of the terminal. For that last minute letter or postcard, stamps are available at the airport news agency and a posting box is located outside the front of the building and in the departure lounge.

To ensure your comfort before, after and between flights, a number of toilets, showers and baby change rooms are available in various locations around the terminal. Perth Airport also provides access to all terminal facilities for disabled visitors. Wheelchairs can be requested from airline staff if required. A non-denominational prayer room is available for airport users on the ground floor of the terminal.

There is a self-help information centre on the ground floor of the International Terminal. Volunteer customer service officers are also available daily to provide information and answer enquiries. They are recognisable by their distinctive gold jackets.

Transportation

By taxi

Taxi ranks are situated outside the Domestic and International terminals; travellers may be required to pay their fare in advance. The same fare applies for either a single person or a group.

By bus

There is an Airport-City shuttle, which runs between the airport's two terminals and the city; stops are located near hotels, motels and hostels in Perth. The daily Fremantle Airport Shuttle service to Fremantle, a suburb of Perth, is also available.

By car

Avis, Budget, Europcar, Hertz and Thrifty car rental companies are represented at the airport.
